RESERVED SEATS can now be had for K. M. K. C. entertainment.

HARRY WALKER will run an oyster wagon, delivering oysters in any part of the city. Orders by postal card will receive prompt attention.

REMEMBER the K. M. K. C., entertainment at the Athenaeum to-night, and be on hand.

NOTICE TO SHIPPERS.—The city of St. Louis has quarantined against the delivery of freights coming from the states of Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana, as well as from Cairo proper. In order to insure delivery at St. Louis, the shipper must furnish a certificate that the freight is not from any of the states named, nor from any infected district. Shippers will please govern themselves accordingly.

THE Cairo City Coal company can sell better coal cheaper than anybody for three sound reasons: It mines its own coal from its own mines; it pays no royalty; and it can and does land it at Cairo at bottom transportation prices. These facts enable it to do just what it says it will do. Parties in Cairo, therefore, can purchase 10 bushels, or one ton, or ten tons at the same figure that 100 tons can be bought. And the prudent housekeeper knows that now is the time to prepare for the cold weather coming and lay in a supply of cheap coal.

WOOD AND COAL.—Seasoned wood, Hickory, Oak and Ash, at $3 per cord during September. Paradise and Big Muddy Coal. Orders taken for fall delivery at $2 75 for 1 ton; $2 62 per ton for 2 tons; $2 50 per ton for 3 or more.

ABOUT THE CITY.

—Dr. Stalker and family are at Jonesboro.

—Mr. Lehigh left the city on Wednesday night.

—Judge Green is at home from a recent visit to Jonesboro.

—Greene Neale, indicted for stabbing Duffy, was acquitted in court yesterday.

—At the last meeting of the Rough and Ready $50 were voted to the sufferers of the south.

—At the board of health yesterday evening it was resolved to keep an officer on duty at the levee all the time.

—The first response to the circulars sent out by the citizens' Executive Committee, was received to-day from J. Y. Clemson at Olmsted.

—M. John Antrim, Jr., left for Metropolis last night, where he will make his future home. He has embarked there in the merchant tailoring and clothing business.

—The many friends of Mrs. Perkins in this city, to whom she was best known as Mrs. Stewart, will be shocked to learn of her death, which occurred of yellow fever at New Orleans, a few days since.

—Mr. John Horne received a dispatch from Columbus yesterday stating that no yellow fever had appeared there, but they were naturally apprehensive, and had taken every possible precautionary measure against its introduction.

—The Knights of Father Matthew caused the following telegram to be sent to Memphis yesterday: "Cairo Ills., Sept. 5, 1878.—Rev. Wm. Walsh, president Catholic T. A. S., Memphis, Tenn: Draw on me for $35.65 through the First National bank for relief fund. D. J. Foley, sec'y., Knights Father Matthew." This donation represents the proceeds of Rev. Father Murphy's lecture on Sunday night last.

—Mr. E. R. Egnew, proprietor of the St. Charles hotel and Planters' house, has associated with him in the "Planters" his father, Mr. George Egnew of Butler, and whom, we are informed, will take no active part in the management of the business but act as a silent partner. Mr. Egnew, Sr., is one of the wealthiest and most highly esteemed citizens of the place in which he lives, and we are glad to learn that he has become interested in business here. Mr. Egnew informs us that during the dull times the Planters will undergo thorough repairs, and be furnished throughout with new and elegant furniture, making it one of the most comfortable houses in the country.

—Considerable excitement and indignation was created yesterday by the running of the blockade by the steamer Batesville, a small packet, just up from Memphis. The fault attaches to the quarantine officials, but the board of health at its meeting last evening did not locate it on any one, although Mr. Wright was very anxious to do so. The rumor about the boat being infected could be traced to no reliable source, but the captain did tell a gentleman of this city that he had lost three of his crew between here and Memphis. Captain Randall also said, and the evidence sustains him, that he gave the quarantine signal—five whistles—and was answered by a tug, but no one seemed to take any interest in the matter, and he supposed, of course, that the quarantine had been raised. The excuse given for neglecting to prevent her landing is that heretofore Columbus had always reported the boats, but in this instance had failed. The boat was in sight three-quarters of an hour before she touched the wharf.

—The readers of THE BULLETIN will bear testimony that in our differences with the gay old gazelle on the levee, we invariably spoke of her more in sorrow than in anger, reproving her every now and then, it is true, but always in that mixed spirit of affection and artfulness which is found to be most effective in dealing with simple minds or intellects that have given way under extraordinary strains. We are led into this train of thought by the knowledge that she had departed from among us, and it would grieve us to feel that we had in any way wounded her feelings. She began packing her "Saratoga" on Tuesday last simultaneously, strange to say, with the receipt of the first news from Hickman and each additional telegram received since served to accelerate her departure until the thing was consummated yesterday. She went out on the noon train, and Cairo, like Niobe, was for the time, all tears, and like another historical female still refuses to be comforted. The old girls' last words spoken to ourselves from the moving train were, "Tell everybody good-by, for me, darling; I'll be back when the troubles' over." What could we do. The response stuck in our throat, but some how the famous song managed to escape from our lips, "Ta—ta! over the river, Davie," and with that she lost herself in her old bandana. The venerable lady's favorite son, Lewis, follows on the train this morning; He has had a steady pull at hard work all summer, and needs a season of rest for both muscle and brain. During the vacation Mr. Walter F. McKee will have charge of the Sun, and will give to the people an evening paper they will be proud of. We wish Walter the greatest measure of success, for he deserves it in accepting an awful responsibility.

REMEMBER the K. M. K. C., entertainment at the Athenaeum to-night, and be on hand.

—Advices from Hickman yesterday were conflicting. A dispatch to Mr. Matt. Fulton dated about 6 o'clock a.m. put the deaths at five and the new cases at three during the preceding 24 hours. A dispatch at the office of the Iron Mountain road early yesterday morning, put the deaths at three and the new cases at two during the preceding 24 hours. We heard that Dr. Dunning had received a dispatch putting the cases at 60 and the deaths at 12. It was also stated in the telegram, so we are informed, that the disease was yellow fever, with black vomit. The 60 cases, we infer, covers the whole number since the outbreak of the disease, ten or twelve days ago, and the deaths cover the same period. If the number of new cases occurring on Wednesday is reported correctly in the two first dispatches, the disease at Hickman differs from that which has been raging in the south, for even in the smallest communities the spread has been at the average rate of 20 new cases each day from the time it gets a fair start, up to as high as 50 and 60. Another feature of the Hickman disease unlike the southern fever is the small per centage of mortality. But we are reminded that it makes no difference what we may call it—it kills all the same. It makes a great deal of difference as to what it is called, if it is called properly. It makes the difference between a plague that spreads and is fatal and a disease that may be fatal, but is confined to the community in which it originates. Doctors are not infallible and the Hickman members of the profession constitute no exception to this remark.

THE MEETING LAST NIGHT

"TO TAKE STEPS TO QUARANTINE OUR CITY AGAINST YELLOW FEVER," ENDS IN A FAIR—MISERABLE MANAGEMENT.

The following handbill was circulated on the streets yesterday afternoon:

ATTENTION!

All citizens of Cairo are requested to be at the music stand on Tenth st., at 7:30 this evening, to take steps to quarantine our city against yellow fever. Let every one interested in the health of our city be present.

MANY CITIZENS.

In response to this call about two hundred citizens assembled at the place indicated. The meeting doubtless had its origin in dissatisfaction, not so much with our quarantine laws themselves as with the manner of their execution. The immediate cause was the negligence of officials through which a boat from an infected district landed at our wharf without let or hindrance. But as soon as the speakers got fairly started it was evident there would be no harmony as the advice and suggestions offered differed as widely as the polls. In the first place the meeting was without head or tail, and it is intended as no reflection upon the gentleman who managed it to say that they were not exactly clear as to what was the real object of the meeting. There can be no doubt but that at the beginning the people there were thoroughly in earnest, but as the meeting progressed and it became apparent that many of the sentiments uttered were unpopular and that there was a great divergence in the opinions of the speakers as to what should be done, all genuine interest was lost until the whole affair dwindled into a broad burlesque. Mr. B. F. Blake was made chairman of the first meeting, and Capt. Williams secretary.

After a little delay Mr. B. F. Livingston appeared upon the stand and said all he knew of the objects of the meeting he had gathered from the posters which had been circulated. He reviewed adversely the action of the board of health, giving the members full credit for good motives, but severely criticised the action of the officers whose duty it was to execute the law. He advocated a stringent quarantine, and was in favor of volunteer patrols to effectually guard the city against the importation of yellow fever in any shape, and announced his intention of serving as one of those volunteers should the suggestion meet with the favor of the meeting. The gentleman said much more that was just barely relevant to the subject of quarantine, but this indicates the real gist of his remarks.

Mr. Linegar spoke, and we imagine that he wished he had not before he got through. His remarks in the main were suitable and just and met with the applause of his auditors, but when he advised them to disperse and go to their homes he was met with jeers, and several uncomplimentary remarks and suggestions. Mr. Linegar said the alarm that had been created in the town had done and was doing us incalculable injury. He appealed to every man to take courage. He did not believe the disease would come here, and if it did it would only assume a local shape as it had done in 1873. There was no healthier city on the continent, he said, than Cairo. There could be no purer atmosphere. What was to be dreaded most was the spread of sensational stories, and the commission of sensational acts. He referred to the labeling of houses with yellow fever as having in one instance produced fright that resulted in sickness. He rather complimented the personnel of the board of health, and thought they were doing pretty well under the circumstances; but he was frequently interrupted by uncomplimentary allusions to city officials and finally forced to desist. He was told he was the wrong man for that meeting.

Mr. Wood was called for, and up to a certain point his remarks were well received. He knew nothing, he said, of the object of the meeting. He had first seen the call while at supper, and curiosity impelled him to be present. He referred to the call as seeking to do something beyond the power of a popular meeting. He defined the way in which quarantine regulations could be made and enforced, and urged upon his hearers concert of action with the board of health officials. The best thing, he thought, this meeting could do, would be to answer the summons of the mayor for volunteers to appear at his office, which had been published for two days past. The audience met this suggestion with some assertions to the nature of reflections upon his honor, but Mr. Wood proceeded until he began defending the board of health, or at least the motives of its members, when he was frequently interrupted. In the course of his remarks he said the fault of the quarantine was to be found in its laws, but in a want of the proper execution of them, and for this he said the city marshal was answerable, and if he were present he desired to tell him so to his face. The Colonel in conclusion moved that those present at the meeting adjourn to meet at the Mayor's office at 9 o'clock this morning to report for volunteer patrol duty. This motion was adopted.

At this juncture Mr. Livingston stepped to the front and moved that a committee of five be appointed to investigate the actions of the Board of Health, and report at a meeting to be held Friday night at the same place, the result of their labors.

Col. Wood made the point of order that the meeting had adjourned, but before it was decided, Mr. Livingston moved that the meeting re-organized with Capt. Williams as chairman and Mr. B. F. Blake as secretary.

Mr. Livingston repeated his motion, and it was seconded. Long before this the audience had worked itself into excellent humor, and seemed to be bent more on fun than business. It was apparent then that nothing real would be done, and they voted with great impartiality on both sides of every question, leaving him in doubt as how to decide, and harassing him with sarcastic and impertinent interrogations. It was in this spirit that an amendment was offered raising the committee to fifteen, and the amendment and original motion was adopted amid jeers and laughter. The chair appointed the following gentlemen as the committee, and they are requested to appear at the council chamber this morning at 9 o'clock for organization and business: Messrs. McHale, Livingstone, Roberts, Tanner, Hannon, Blake, Ties, Sullivan, Goodyear, E. W. Green, Alden, Jas. Ross, McManus, Bird, Taylor and Lonergan.

Then there was a final adjournment. If the proposition had been made at any time to demand of the board of health a rigid enforcement of the quarantine laws as they exist, promising all the aid as citizens that would be needed, and had this been supplemented by an additional demand that the board of health trace to the proper officer or officers the fault of the Batesville affair of yesterday, and suspend or dismiss the guilty parties, both demands would have met with unqualified approval, because it is what should have been done, and the meeting would then have answered a good purpose. It was simply farcical as it was, and the appointment of a committee by a public meeting for the purposes indicated in Mr. Livingston's motion is too absurd for serious comment.

ANOTHER FAT MAN REDUCED.—H. A. Kufus, dealer in dry-goods, Woodhull, Ill., writes Botanic Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y., June 23d, 1878: "Gentlemen—Please find enclosed $5.00, for which send me by express, Anti-Fat. I have taken one bottle and lost five and one-quarter pounds."
